

Abstract

Name fo the work: Case study of physiotherapy treatment of a patient with rheumatic arthritis

Aim: The aim of the bachelor thesis is to introduce the topic of rheumatic arthritis.

Methodics of work: The work is divided into theoretical and special part. The first chapter is devoted to general rheumatology, necessary examinations and mainly to rheumatic arthritis. In the second part case study of the patient with this disease is described in details. The part also include testing, individual therapies, output examination and evaluation of the therapy effect.

Result: The case study was elaborate in the period of January 6. – 31. 2014 at the Institute of Rheumatology in Prague. And the aims of therapies was fulfilled.

Key words: Rheumatology, rheumatic arthritis, case study, physiotherapy